

Megan Needham

Associate

Email

mneedham@wnlaw.com

Phone

801.533.9800

Megan Needham's practice involves intellectual property litigation, trademark prosecution, and advising clients on data privacy matters. Megan is a registered patent attorney and previously practiced patent litigation at Kirkland & Ellis LLP in New York City where she represented large, multinational companies in federal district court litigation. She also worked for several years in higher education as an instructor, counselor, and administrator. Megan is a member of the New York and Oregon bars.

Education

J.D., Georgetown University Law
Center, 2010

B.S., Chemical Engineering, Brigham
Young University, 2007

Admissions

Registered Patent Attorney, U.S.
Patent and Trademark Office

New York State Bar

Oregon State Bar

Utah State Bar (pending)

Publications

- Megan Woodhouse, Note, Shop 'til You Drop: Implementing Federal Rules of Patent Litigation Procedure to Wear Out Forum Shopping Patent Plaintiffs, 99 GEO. L.J. 227 (2010).
- Megan Woodhouse, Honorable Mention, Foley & Lardner, LLP 10th Annual IP Writing Competition, Antitrust Implications of a Finding of Inequitable Conduct for Pharmaceutical Patent Owners (2009).
- Thomas H. Fletcher, Brent M. Pickett, Steven G. Smith, Gregory S. Spittle, Megan M. Woodhouse, Elizabeth Haake, and David R. Weise, Effects of Moisture on Ignition Behavior of Moist California Chaparral and Utah Leaves, 179 COMBUSTION SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY 1183, 1183-1203 (2007).

Speaking Engagements

- Symposium Organizer, Faith on the Hill, Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C. (March 2, 2009), broadcast on C-SPAN as Religion in Congress (April 21, 2009) (featuring U.S. Senate Chaplain Rear Admiral Barry C. Black and U.S. House of Representatives Chaplain Daniel P. Coughlin).